

Weather delays to Forum Pacific V173N

08nd February 2018

Dear Valued Customers,

Poor weather conditions & heavy swells around Apia prevented the Forum Pacific V173 berthing on her arrival in port yesterday. She was therefore given instructions to sail for Pago Pago, where the ship is currently being worked & the plan is then to return to Apia to discharge & load cargo.

The lost time through these ports will create some delay to her forward schedule and the return leg to New Zealand to replace the Southern Moana on the New Zealand to Noumea – Fiji – Vanuatu service.

We are closely monitoring the weather and will send through a revised schedule for her, once the vessel has made more progress on this current voyage.

Thank you for your continued support.

Yours sincerely,
Pacific Direct Line
