

Dear Customer:

We are pleased to share that Neptune Pacific Line (Neptune) and Pacific Direct Line (PDL) have officially changed their names to Neptune Pacific Direct Line (NPDL). On future communications, you will see our new logo:

Only our name is changing. Existing agreements and business relationships with customers and vendors remain unaffected. This move simply recognizes the synergies between our liner brands following Neptune's acquisition of PDL in March 2020 and provides a unified service to customers in markets across the South Pacific. You may continue to pay your freight to the current bank account that you have for either NPL or PDL for the time being. Bills of Lading (OBLs) will be issued under the NPDL brand commencing from the first load port of the nominated vessel voyages below, and at each port called thereafter:

As an employer of over 700 people across 12 South Pacific countries, we have always been concerned with the socio-economic development of the Pacific Islands. Our expansive family of end-to-end supply chain businesses enable us to create jobs on shore and at sea, facilitate trade, and reduce dependency on imports by supporting export development and local manufacturing. Our new brand provides a fully-integrated shipping service for customers across the region and a broad network of Connecting Carrier Agreements linking our South Pacific services with weekly connections to North and South East Asia.

NPDL will continue to operate a specialised fleet of nine vessels dedicated to South Pacific trades. Our family of brands – which also includes Transam agencies, Williams & Gosling, Container Repairs & Sales (CRS), Pacific Bulk Fuels, Transam Logistics, and a variety of stevedoring services – seamlessly links transport, warehousing, depots and customs clearance services and fully integrates customers’ supply chains across the South Pacific region

We look forward to continuing to serve the shipping and supply chain needs of our customers for years to come.

Sincerely,

Rolf Rasmussen
